

Abstract

The present invention relates to the detection of nucleic acid sequences using coupled ligation and amplification. The coupling of ligation and amplification allows multiplex detection of nucleic acid sequences. The invention
5 also relates to methods, reagents, and kits that employ addressable-support specific sequences in detecting nucleic acid sequences.

09724759.1 1200